TO WEAK WOMEN FIERY OLD

Of Barre and Vicinity-We Make the Following Proposition.

"There are hundreds of women in this vicinity who are dragging themselves through life in pain and misery, without rindity, strength or health," said Mr. Wells, of the firm of Rickert & Wells. "They get no happiness out of life and are just in a condition to be attacked by almost any di-They need a vitality making and strength-creating tonic,

Now, at our expense, we want to ask every such woman to try our cod liver oil preparation, Vinol, which contains in highly concentrated form all of the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, but no oil or grease. It is delicious to take, creates a healthy appetite, makes pure, rich, red blood and gives strength and vigor to every organ of the body better than any medicine we have ever sold in our store, and when a woman is in this condition it makes life worth living. When we say 'at our expense,' we mean that if the medicine you buy from us and pay for does not benefit you, we will refund every cent of it cheerfully, and thus you try it as our expense."

Miss Mary A. Woodard of Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I think Vinol is the best remedy in the world for a weak, tired, worn-out system. I was in just that condition when I commenced to take Vinol. It gave me new life and energy, and after using three bottles I felt like a different woman. I feel well and strong and better than I have for years. I believe Vinol will do much more than is claimed for it."

We can only ask Barre women to try Vinol on our guarantee. Rickert & Wells,

An ingenious German and a professor at that, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, has devised an apparatus by which a person lying in bed in a room electrically lighted can touch a button and tell what time it is with scarcely a movement of the body. There is a lamp that the button governs, and when the latter is pressed the lamp throws on the ceiling of the bedroom lighted by electricity and with the time correctly indicated.

FEATURES OF ERUPTIONS

In 1822 the Whole Lop of Vesuvius Was Blown Off-Wonderful Power Behind the Explosion.

The recent eruption of Mount Vesuvius is in line with the past history of the volcano, which, ever since Pompell was overthrown, in A. D. 79, has been averaging only thirty years between violent eruptions, says the New York Tribune. There have been sixty tremendous convulsions in this volcano since the year 79. Although the likelihood that Vesuvius may at any time treat the surrounding country as it did L'ompeil has been perfectly well known for centuries, the fascination of the great volcano has fulled tens of thousands of Italian country people into lying along the base and up the sides of the mountain and has tempted as many thousands more of tourists to make the ascent to the summit. Until a few years ago this perilous climb had to be accomplished on muleback tendent of banks and quite a war, tells and with experienced local guides. Today a railway runs nearly up to the tenunt Governor Frank Wayland Hig- top, and pedestrians can walk from the last station out on the great lava field and get close enough to the seat of op-Eaton in Harper's Weekly. When this remarkable volcano is grumbling or after there has been one Broadway, New York, one day, and of the periodic outbursts of dust and cinders persons are not allowed to go up the mountain. A long railway journey takes the climber out from to bring about this pleasant meeting at Naples to the Pompell station, where Forty-second street and Breadway in the fourist has to make a choice from the tourist has to make a choice from a hundred yelling guides and cabmen and is carried through the lively village of modern Pompell to the entrance to the ruins of ancient Pompeli.

Vesuvius rested for 124 years, until in the year 203 occurred the second recorded eruption. Another came in the year 472 and was so tremendous that ushes were carried over the whole of Europe and even to Asia and Africa. The fourth eruption came in 1036. In 1631 an eruption was accompanied by tremendous streams of lava and torrents of boiling water. In 1779 modern scientific men for the first time studied the phenomenon. In the convulsion of an optical representation of the watch | 1794 the town of Torre del Greco was destroyed. In this eruption a great hole opened in the aide of the volcano near the base, which filled up with molten lava. One stream of the lava from this explosion was estimated as containing more than 40,000,000 enbic feet. In 1822 the whole top of Vesuvius was blown off, and a chusm about three miles in circumference and probably more than 2,000 feet deep was formed, In 1850, 1855 and 1858 streams of lava poured out of the volcano, and in April, 1872, came another impressive convulston. In 1882, in 1886 and in 1891 came more eruptions. In 1897 came the eruption a photograph of which was taken by Brogt of Florence. Huge stones were thrown up to tremendous heights at that time, and clouds of steam, smoke and ashes escaped from the crater for days. An interesting feature about these eruptions is the heat of the ejected lava. One stream, being tested, gave reading of 1,228 degrees F. Another stream fused silver, the melting point

STORIES ABOUT HARCOURT.

How Sir William Surprised a British Battleship's Steward.

Not a bad little story is told of the late Sir William Harcourt, the British statesman, says the New York Post. Some time ago he visited a man-of-war lying off the Hampshire coast and, after having spent a solid hour in examining the vessel, accepted the captain's invitation to dine on board. Before the meal was finished a violent storm had come up, making the sen very rough and all prospects of the former chancellor's return to land that night inpossible. So it was arranged that Sir-William should occupy the berth of the captain, a small, wiry individual.

The steward was not notified of the change of bertis, and the following morning at 6 o'clock he brought a cup of coffee to the captain's door. Knocking twice without receiving a reply was most unusual, so he hastily pushed open the door and inquired, "Don't you wish your coffee this morning. sir Y' Sir William gave a snore, and the steward was amazed to see a large figure turn over under the bedelothes, are expected. "For heaven's sake, sir," he gasped, "come to the captain, left pears are about out of market. He's speechless and swollen to ten times his natural size!"

In society Sir William added sait to any dinner table.
